So here I am, a one man stand

Against the loneliness that wants my end

I fight it hard with all i have

I try to win to no avail

But least I don’t loose, I say to myself

I’m staying strong, I fight it all

I can’t let myself be bested

By a mere feeling full of fakeness

I am what I am, no more no less

I won’t budge in front of something that plays pretend

If it wants more, then it should take

But it won’t be able to carry all that I am

For I am man, a living person

I weight more than it can handle